

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
Thursday, November 7, 2019

CLEARPATH

ClearPath Deepens Policy Expertise, Announces New Hires

WASHINGTON, DC – Thursday, November 7, 2019 – ClearPath announced three new additions to the policy team. New hires Niko McMurray joins as Nuclear Program Director, and Cameron Tarry as Policy Fellow while Cole Simons expands his existing role at ClearPath to include Policy Analyst.

“The addition of Niko and Cameron significantly increases ClearPath’s depth of expertise on conservative clean energy policies and strengthens our role as policy resource for lawmakers and stakeholders,” ClearPath Executive Director Rich Powell said.

McMurray joins ClearPath from the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC), where he was a Materials Engineer focusing on new and advanced nuclear reactors.

Tarry was previously a public policy consultant at Dominion Energy, Inc.. and also worked as a research assistant at Washington Policy & Analysis. In addition to her experience in the energy sector, Cameron spent the past year on a Fulbright Fellowship in Kutaisi, Georgia.

Cole Simons, who is Chief of Staff to ClearPath Executive Director Rich Powell, will take on an additional role as Policy Analyst focusing on electricity markets and later stage research and deployment.

ABOUT CLEARPATH

ClearPath (501(c)(3)) was established by businessman Jay Faison in 2014. ClearPath’s vision is that America leads in affordably powering the world with reliable clean energy. ClearPath’s mission is to develop and advance conservative policies that accelerate clean energy innovation. To advance that mission, ClearPath develops cutting-edge policy and collaborates with academics and industry. Learn more at clearpath.org. Follow us on Twitter: @JayFaison1, @powellrich, @ClearPathAction