Organization Overview

ClearPath’s mission is to develop and advance policies that accelerate breakthrough innovations that reduce emissions in the energy and industrial sectors. To advance that mission, we develop cutting-edge policy and messaging, educate policymakers, and collaborate with academics and industry. Founded in 2014 by entrepreneur Jay Faison, ClearPath engages in the direct education of policy makers within the White House, Congress, Executive Agencies, and regulators like the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) and Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC).

ClearPath team members believe in limited government, free markets, and American entrepreneurship. Those principles form the basis for how the team analyzes proposed clean energy and climate policy.

Job Summary

This position works collaboratively with the policy and government affairs teams, which are focused on a diverse set of clean energy and industrial technologies. The position is responsible for crafting and driving forward the nuclear policy vision for the organization. ClearPath’s Policy Manager will report to the Managing Director of Public Policy and be responsible for building and assisting in the development and promotion of policies that support ClearPath’s goals and objectives to key audiences in government and industry. They will focus on nuclear energy innovation policies, but will include work in other clean energy technology areas as needed.

Job Description

Research & Advising (50%)

- Provide high-level, quick, and in-depth analysis of policy, politics and industry trends;
- Produce research insights and written products pertaining to ongoing nuclear energy legislative, regulatory and innovation activities across the federal government;
- Manage nuclear energy policy-related grants;
- Support rapid response initiatives when questions arise on Capitol Hill about ClearPath’s policy agenda; and
- Track the Department of Energy’s clean energy programs and make recommendations to improve their impact.

Strategic Thinking & Execution (25%):

- Prioritize, execute and raise the visibility of ClearPath’s policy agenda; this includes identifying gaps that can be leveraged for growth;
- Identify policy opportunities and help develop strategies alongside ClearPath Government Affairs team for advocacy; and
- Exhibit superb critical thinking and problem-solving skills; they will have a proven ability to grasp big-picture concepts as well as granular complexities.
Communications, Relationship Building & Influence (25%):

- Utilize a data-driven and fact-based approach to educate and influence stakeholders;
- Communicate complex ideas clearly, simply and convincingly, internally and externally to both technical and non-technical audiences;
- Publish “thought leadership” (i.e. blogs, white papers, op-eds), speak on the record with reporters and speak at public events to elevate clean energy debate;
- Attract and cultivate collaborative relationships with key stakeholders; they will represent ClearPath in a credible manner and with ease; and
- Work with advanced nuclear companies, past and current regulators, and other stakeholders to develop policies that accelerate the commercialization of next-generation reactors.

Preferred Qualifications

- 4-7 years of deep energy policy or energy industry experience, ideally related to nuclear energy. Candidates may qualify based on a combination of graduate education and relevant experience.
- Comfortable with technical concepts and able to quickly learn technical nuclear concepts.
