WASHINGTON, DC – Thursday, February 9, 2023 – ClearPath announced the addition of Karen Obenshain as Program Manager for Natural Gas.

“We are excited to add Karen, a well-known industry expert, to our expanding policy team,” said Spencer Nelson, ClearPath Managing Director of Research and New Initiatives. “She brings a wealth of experience and expertise in regulatory affairs and fossil energy that will be extremely valuable as ClearPath explores innovative technologies to reduce emissions in the natural gas sector.”

Prior to ClearPath, Karen was Senior Director of Fuels, Technology & Commercial Policy at Edison Electric Institute (EEI) for more than 16 years, where she covered various fossil energy and carbon capture policy issues.

Previously, she was a Staff Scientist at Keller and Heckman LLP.

Karen earned her ScD in Environmental Health Sciences from Tulane School of Public Health and Tropical Medicine, where she focused on the assessment and impact of manmade and natural compounds that threaten human health. She also holds a M.S. in Geology/Geochemistry from the University of Georgia.
